

Agnes Schönfelder

Head of the Climate Changes Strategy Office, City of Mannheim

CEO of the Climate Action Agency Mannheim

Agnes Schönfelder is by profession a civil engineer with a university degree and continued studies through further educations on environmental and climate issues. She has been acting in public authorities at municipal and state level over 20 years, since 2009 as the Director of the Climate Change Strategy Department for the City of Mannheim and since 2019 as the CEO of the Climate Action Agency Mannheim in a double functional position.

With the qualities of a climate protection and environmental specialist as well as in coordination, communication and project management, her main task is to develop climate strategies and to coordinate mitigation and adaptation projects. She is an expert for peer-to-peer exchange and large-scale networking in capacity building processes to transfer of good practice not only within the city but also on European and international stage.